GuitarZound – The android app for ambitious musicians

The version 1.7.1 of GuitarZound Android app with the lately announced community factor is now available.

To the already known functions such as storing and displaying sound settings for guitar and bass players, the possibility to exchange the sound settings among other GuitarZound app users is added. The set list of the last gig can be shared with the fan community on Twitter, Facebook, Google+ and other social networks. Sound settings can also be shared on the public server database of GuitarZound, where other app users can browse sound settings.

Requested improvements from the app users on managing sound settings and related information such as keeping the lyrics in ChordPro modus and multi-channel-amp handling are now available. The app also separates between guitar and bass settings.

GuitarZound has in its new version lots of improvements and innovation which help users to access sound settings easily and simplifies live on stage.

Excessive help on how to make best use out of GuitarZound is available under www.training.guitarzound.com.

The TRIAL version can be downloaded at <https://play.google.com/store/apps/details?id=eu.kwyn.guitarzound>. Depending on the musicians' ambitions, different licences (LITE and PRO) of GuitarZound can be purchased using in-app purchase of Google play. GuitarZound is also available in the Samsung app store in the versions TRIAL, LITE and PRO.
